HER CHRISTIAN NAME.

BY BEVERLY SMITH.

Jimmie, who simply stared open-mouthed at his chuckling tormentor. "That's the worst of you close-mouthed people," said he presently, with an air of deep disgust. "You sit around and don't say a word and all the while you are keeping close tabs on everything and everybody. Then when a fellow comes around to tell you a piece of important news, you take the wind all out of his sails with your air of world-wide knowledge and consciousness of his most intimate thoughts. I must say that you might have pretended ignorance. Now, I'll just keep quiet about the matter." And Jimmie resolutely closed his mouth and turned again to his cigar.

"Now, Jimmie," said Walcott, with dignity, "don't be any more of a chump than usual. You know you are so full of the subject that you have just got to talk. So fire away."

And Jimmie did fire away presently, the subject having gotten the better of his resolve.

"But Henry, all natural prejudice aside, I just can't believe my good luck. To think that she should accept me, when she might have had any man—why, old chap, she might have married you, couldn't she?"

"Did she tell you so?"

"Nope," said Jimmie cheerfully, "but I can't see how it is that you haven't fallen in love with her."

"Maybe I was in love with another woman," said Walcott slowly.

There was something in his tone that made Jimmie look up quickly.

Walcott was gazing into the cheerful fire, and there was such a smile upon his face as Jimmie had never seen. That mercurial youngster was on his feet in an instant and rushed over to Walcott.

"By Jove, old chap, so you have been indulging in a love affair and didn't even take me, your best friend, into your confidence! I call that shameful of you, but I am deceived glad to know that you are in love, after all. Take my word for it, old chap, there's nothing like it in all the world."

"Easy, boy," said Walcott, with a quiet smile that may have concealed some embarrassment. "I haven't confessed to any love affair yet. And as for confidences, remember that you told me nothing of yours until you were actually engaged. Even good friends like you and me don't talk over such affairs. However, I may have—I hope to have—some good news to tell you soon."

"How soon?"

"Who can say?"

"Have you proposed to her?"

"No, but I intend to do so."

"Good boy! Go in and win. If you want a certificate of good character, call on me. I am always ready to tell a lie in the sacred cause of friendship. And Jimmie's infectious laugh took all sitting away from the remark."

Once more fell a period of silence and Jimmie broke it with:

"Did you ever notice the color of her eyes, Henry?"

"Yes," answered Henry, with an air of amusement. "They are blue, aren't they?"

"No, indeed," said Jimmie somewhat indignantly. "They are a wonderful deep gray, almost black."

"Is that so?" was the somewhat indifferent reply. "Then she has the same color of eyes as her cousin. I know that she has wonderful, deep, gray eyes—wonderful eyes." This last was very soft.

"Not at all, stupid," said Jimmie, vexed at so much stupidity. "Her cousin's eyes are blue. I'll be blessed if you ever observe anything."

Jimmie himself was not observing anything, but was sitting with his gaze fixed on the heart of the flames and his mind lost in happy reverie. He did not see his companion look up with a quick frown in his eyes and a face drawn with emotion. Nor did he hear a question addressed to him. Indeed, Walcott's voice was very thick, and he hardly knew himself whether he had spoken the question aloud, or merely in his anguished voice to himself.

"Then you are engaged to Kate Preston?"

"Yes," he finally managed to say, loud enough to make his companion hear.

"Certainly," said Jimmie in astonishment. "Who did you think I was engaged to—certainly not to Annie Preston?"

"I didn't know," said Walcott weakly. "So your mind-reading wasn't so good, after all!" exclaimed Jimmie in triumph. "Well, I must be going—so long!"

And he was gone.

For a long time Walcott sat before the fire, though his cigar went out unnoticed and was not relit.

Then he slowly walked to his desk and took out a letter, addressed in his own handwriting. Opening it he stood in front of the fire and read it through twice. It was a proposal of marriage, simple, straightforward and winning in its declaration of great love.

The letter fluttered first to the fire and the envelope followed it, Walcott standing quietly to watch them burn. One might have read the address on the envelope, even after it was caught by the flames, and that address was:

"Miss Kate Preston."

FOR FEMINE READERS.

Women have to stand the charge of many present day evil tendencies, says the Los Angeles Herald. If the home is neglected it is woman's fault; if the industrial world is overcrowded it is woman's fault; if extravagance is universal it is woman's fault; if juvenile crime is on the increase it is the fault of the mother. And now here comes a clergyman who declares that woman's dominance in church work has a tendency to make preaching and religious activity effeminate.

The Rev. William R. Notman of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, in a sermon on "Women in Modern Church Life," said recently:

"Women predominate in modern church work, and I fear the effect of this condition on the standing of the church among men. Men say the church is more or less effeminate; that it is run by women, that it has a womanly spirit and a woman's ministry. Men ask if it is possible for a clergyman who preached to more women than men to avoid moulding his sermon to woman's nature. Will not the preaching of the Gospel, if it is to be of any use, be to the womanly tone? I believe that the ministry needs to guard against this tendency. The church should be for men as well as for women."

Mrs. Ellen Wright, a composer of many sweet songs, including the now notorious "Violent," will be married shortly in Menlo Park, N. J., to a well-known musician. Mrs. Wright is one of three daughters of the late Carl Rosa. She has purchased a villa near Cap Martin.

On April 16 the Vatican at Rome presented a spectacle unprecedented for centuries, when Pope Pius and his court attended (at the Sala Regia) the performance of a new oratorio, "The Last Judgment." The choir, which included women singers, was personally conducted by the composer. This is the first

BENEFICIARIES FAIR ESTATE.

Mrs. William Vanderbilt.

The contest over the $7,000,000 estate of Charles L. Fair, who was killed in an automobile accident in France two years ago, and whose wife, Caroline Fair, met death at the same time, has been ended. Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and Mrs. William Vanderbilt, the sisters of Mrs. Fair, have agreed to pay approximately $2,700,000 to the mother and other heirs of Mrs. Fair.

Mrs. Herman Oelrichs.

Two of Salt Lake's charming daughters who leave shortly for long visits away from home were guests of honor at a very beautifully appointed card party yesterday afternoon. Miss Esther T. Allen and Miss Margaret Domellian being the guests of honor, Miss Agatha Berkehoel and Miss Beatrice O'Connor the hostesses. The decorations were among the prettiest seen here in a long time. In the hall of the Berkheide home, where the party was given, white and green were used, branches of white lilacs completely concealing the bannister of the stair, while a huge vase of the same flowers occupied one corner of the hall. Yellow was the color carried out in the parlor and dining-room, the small yellow sunflowers and yellow-shaded lights combining to give the most artistic effect imaginable. In the center of the mantel was a silver candelabrum with candles and shades of yellow, with a tall vase of sunflowers on one corner and the same bright flowers scattered loosely over the shelf. A handsome silver tray, almost black, occupied the center of the piano top, with tall vases of sunflowers on either side, and a single silver candlestick with candles and shades of yellow at either end. Suspended from the top of the mirror of the parlor and dining-room were long, trailing vines of Madeira. Tall vases of the sunflowers were effectively placed all about the room, making it altogether attractive. From the chandeliers in the parlor and the dining-room were suspended baskets of sunflowers, the long stems of which were not cut, and the prevailing color. When luncheon was served very pretty Japanese covers in yellow were used, and in the center of each table was a Japanese vase filled with sunflowers. The score and tally-cards were especially pretty and appropriate. One half of the table was decorated with white and yellow ribbons. The score-cards were large lilacs hand-painted with marguerites. Sixty-two was the game played, and the prize was won by Miss Judith Evans and Miss Ina Rudy. Beautiful guest prizes were also given to Miss Constance H. Hays, Miss Susan Sawyer, Miss Clara Hall, Miss June Elitz, Miss Claude Scholfield, Miss Susan Sawyer, Miss Marie Miller, Miss Mercy Berkeley, Miss Clara Diehl, Miss Nellie Cullen, Miss Gertrude Hays, Miss Elsie Hays, Miss Carrie Sappington, Miss Nellie Pinkerton, Miss Daisy Raybould, Miss Georgia Savage, Miss Pearl Savage, Miss Flora Grant, Miss Ina Rudy, Miss Janet Richards, Miss Margaret Johnson, Miss Alice Seckels, Miss Jennie Lynn, Miss Elsie Lynn, Miss Louise Lammson, Miss Elsie Scheld, Miss Josephine Bottorff, Miss Leta Rawline, Miss Lillian Burnham, Miss Judith Evans, Miss Ina Rudy, Miss O'Connell, Miss Helen Adams and Miss Seckels.

In the social history of the Reviewers' club, which is full of bright pages, not one of the events has been more delightful than the breakfast yesterday morning at the University club in honor of the retiring president, Mrs. Charles D. Moore. It was served in the private dining-room of the club, and was a beautiful affair. In the center was a long table, the top of which was covered with a white cloth. The table was decorated with white and yellow ribbons. The score and tally-cards were especially pretty and appropriate. One half of the table was decorated with white and yellow ribbons. The score-cards were large lilacs hand-painted with marguerites. Sixty-two was the game played, and the prize was won by Miss Judith Evans and Miss Ina Rudy. Beautiful guest prizes were also given to Miss Constance H. Hays, Miss Susan Sawyer, Miss Clara Hall, Miss June Elitz, Miss Claude Scholfield, Miss Susan Sawyer, Miss Marie Miller, Miss Mercy Berkeley, Miss Clara Diehl, Miss Nellie Cullen, Miss Gertrude Hays, Miss Elsie Hays, Miss Carrie Sappington, Miss Nellie Pinkerton, Miss Daisy Raybould, Miss Georgia Savage, Miss Pearl Savage, Miss Flora Grant, Miss Ina Rudy, Miss Janet Richards, Miss Margaret Johnson, Miss Alice Seckels, Miss Jennie Lynn, Miss Elsie Lynn, Miss Louise Lammson, Miss Elsie Scheld, Miss Josephine Bottorff, Miss Leta Rawline, Miss Lillian Burnham, Miss Judith Evans, Miss Ina Rudy, Miss O'Connell, Miss Helen Adams and Miss Seckels.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Tarvin Harris entertained at an informal dinner last evening at the home of Mrs. Harris. The decorations and covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Armstrong, Mrs. Sara Bransford, Mr. Frank Harris of Idaho, and Mr. Leonard.

Purple and white were carried out in the original and beautiful decorations seen at the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. George Phelps Holman. A loosely woven basket of green and white stood in the center of the long table, stalks of purple and white iris rising from the basket. The basket also contained a beautiful centerpiece. At the plates of the guests and used for souvenirs of the occasion were beautiful white plates with purple pansies. Tall vases of the iris were seen on tables and mantel in the dining-room, while in the hall the iris and blossoms of the wild cherry were seen. White lilacs were used in the parlor and snowballs in the library. Mrs. Holman's guests for yesterday's luncheon, which was one of a series, included Mrs. Harkness, Mrs. Perry, S. Heath, Mrs. Edna P. Holmes, Mrs. Victor M. Clement, Mrs. Samuel Woodward, Mrs. Keogh, Mrs. W. Montague Perry, Mrs. O. W. Powers and Mrs. Thomas Weir.

Frederick W. Hayt left yesterday morning for New York, where he will meet Mrs. Hayt, who has been spending the past six months in the East. After visiting for a time at the World's fair, they will return to Salt Lake about June 15.

Mrs. Hugh Park and Miss Sara Reid Park are expected to return from California on Saturday. Miss Park has just graduated from Stanford. Miss Reid is a member of the class of 1904 at Stanford, and who has many friends here, will return with them for a short visit on her way to her home in Denver.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kane of Chicago are spending a few days in this city, guest at the home of Judge and Mrs. C. S. Kane.

The Misses Alexander were hostesses at a charming informal afternoon tea yesterday given in honor of their guest, Miss Pitts. The house was bright with spring flowers, and the afternoon was very much enjoyed by the twenty girls invited to meet Miss Lake.

Mrs. Herman Oelrichs.

Gen. J. M. J. Sanno, a retired army officer, accompanied by his wife and daughter, is in the city and will probably remain for the summer. Mrs. Sanno will be the guest of Miss Stella Salisbury for some time. Gen. Sanno is a native of Utah and is a member of the "Whitehall."

Mrs. Herman Oelrichs.

Mrs. Annie Adams, mother of Maude Adams, and Mrs. Isabel Pitts will receive their friends informally this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Pitts, 63 South Main street, from 2 to 5 o'clock. No invitations have been issued and friends are cordially invited to be present.

A large portion of society is interested in the parole recital to be given this evening at the First Congregational church by the advanced pupils of Miss Gratta Flanders.

The president's address and reports of officers and representatives of foreign women's clubs took up the general of the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday at St. Louis. The partisans of the several candidates for president are very active. There is a growing disposition on the part of several delegations, that of New York in particular, to induce the present incumbent, Mrs. James T. S. Denison of New York city, to announce her candidacy for re-election. Mrs. Denison is, however, very reluctant to do so, and has repeatedly said that she will not allow her name to be used.

A PRETTY GIRLISH FROCK.
DESIGN BY MAY MANTON.

MISSIE'S SHIRRED YOKE WAIST 423.
MISSIE'S SKIRT 1713.

Nowhere are the shirrings of the season more attractive and charming than these designs for young girls. This very pretty model shows them used to advantage and is made of pale blue silk and cotton mousseline with yoke and sleeve of tucked white muslin and trimming of cream colored lace. The waist is an exceedingly effective one and includes shoulder straps that give the drooping line of fashion while the sleeve is circular, shirred to form a yoke and laid in box pleats at the lower edge which are simply pressed to position. To make the frock of a girl of 14 years of age will be required, for the waist 3 1/2 yards of material 27 or 29 inches wide, with 3/4 yard of tucking; for the skirt 2 1/2 yards 27 or 35 yards 44 inches wide. A May Manton pattern of No. 4229, sizes 12 to 16 years, or of skirt, No. 4713, sizes 12 to 16 years, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion department of this paper on receipt of 10 cents for each.
